Large Crowd Attends Memorial Service

Overcast, dull and cold, but we have known many when the weather was worse. The scene at the Memorial Clock tower was never more poignant. Veterans of three wars stood at attention when the wreaths were laid and the "Last Post and Reveille" broke the two-minute silence. We do not remember a more fitting and reverent memorial service, perhaps we felt it more because only the day before we laid to rest that old comrade who never failed us and whose presence we all felt so acutely standing there in his accustomed place in charge of his comrades.

Elsewhere in these columns we have tried to express our thanks to all. It is hard to find words, particularly: hard to find the right ones and those which might convey some impression of the feeling and spirit of the eleventh hour of the eleventh day of the eleventh month. Perhaps it can only be felt and never properly expressed—but, a scene occurred at the Legion lunch at the hotel which came very close to doing it when two Wainwright boys, both of whom had been decorated for valor, and an older comrade who had served in both wars, were asked to stand that their comrades might do them honour. We hope they felt as proud to be in our company as we felt to be in theirs.

More than one of our speakers alluded to the fact that the old guard are thinning, but if the returning youngsters carry on the tradition and policies of the Canadian Legion they'll be a potent force for good in the years that are to be. One Legionnaire gave it to us in lighter vein during the evening of our "At Home" and as his comrades requested publication of his efforts, we quote:

If you build a better mousetrap than your neighbours,
They may think it the forest hides your cat,
The world will beat a pathway, and
"be jabsers"
They'll purchase all the mousetraps you have got,
They'll pester and provoke you to expansion,
And mass production of your simple wares,
And one day you'll find you're lying in a mansion
With swimming pools, and baths and marble stairs.
If you paint a better picture than your brother
It's no use sneaking off among the trees,
For the world will yell and clamour for another.

And gone are all your days of quiet ease,
The powers that be will hold you to production
Till you hate the very sight of tubes and paint,
And the day arrives when out-put shows reduction
And you who once were popular—then ain't.
If you run a better canteen than your neighbour,
And staff it with the fairest girls in town,
There seems to be no end to toil and labour,
And even if you win some small renown
The darn thing gets all bloated up with profit,
And there's little rest by day and less by night,
And comrade Herb can make no better of it
Than to Bank deposits safely out of sight.
But here's the rub. When this grim war has ended,
And Hitler's hanged and Hiroto's dead
And Mussolini's ghost steals untended
Down darkened streets to balconies o'erhead
Shall we who once comprised the Legion
White haired and weary with the march of time
Totter at last to arm chairs in the region
Of that fireplace, and sit—and spend a dime.
We cannot, as our comrades did before us,
Finish in style for all the world to see
And well we know that nothing can restore us
Nor bring us back our old supremacy.
But we can tell those boys and girls who're coming
"We did our best, and would not tarry on,
You are the Legion now, you keep her humming,
And here's your Legion Hall, so Carry On."—Con.

And gone are all your days of quiet ease,
The powers that be will hold you to production
Till you hate the very sight of tubes and paint,
And the day arrives when out-put shows reduction
And you who once were popular—then ain't.
If you run a better canteen than your neighbour,

There seems

PROPER RECREATION

VITAL TO HEALTH

The late Chauncey Depew, famous American senator as well known for his wit as for his skill in debate, once said that he took absolutely no exercise except to act as pall bearer for his friends who did. And there's a good deal of common sense behind the flippancy of that remark. Your heart is a loyal and tireless organ, but there comes a time when it may object to overwork.

Exercise is a valuable form of recreation, invaluable to youth and useful when youth is past—but when middle-age is reached moderation in exercise is insurance on having more years to enjoy other recreations.

Fortunately, recreation is not limited to any one type of activity. There are literally hundreds of forms of recreation, from the most active to those that require nothing more than sitting down and listening. They can all serve the useful purpose of relieving mental and nervous strain, of helping to recharge the human "batteries", and giving zest to living. Semi-active and non-active recreations available to all include hobbies, attendance at sports events, attendance at or more direct interest in musical or dramatic entertainments, active interest in discussion or educational groups.

All afford diversion, a change of activity, and the very necessary break in the monotony of everyday routine.

If older people do not confine their recreation within the limits of their strength and physical condition, the resulting strain tears down rather than builds up—their recreation does no good—possibly harm.

"Promote class struggle. Stir up race conflict. Work only for gain."

These are thoughts hurled in the war of ideas to divide and conquer Canadian industry. But the plan should be not who's right but what's right. Fight for teamwork. Work for the nation. We must rally the constructive forces in industry behind these positive ideas and launch a nationwide counter attack.

"Seize power by any means. Stir up controversy. Discredit our leaders." These mental bombs are dropped on the political front to shatter Canadian democracy. We must fight them off with interceptor ideas. Everyone responsible. The will of God the will of the people. Inspire our leaders.

"Corrupt the youth. Teach them to blame other people. Teach them the materialistic theory of science, history and other studies." Unless we recognize the danger of this sort of thinking, it is an intellectual sabotage that will break down the foundation of Canadian education. We can only make our schools and colleges impregnable if we teach young people to build character. Teach them to start with themselves instead of blaming others. Teach them to understand the moral and spiritual motives which inspired the great men in Canadian history.

These are just a few of the flashes from different fronts in the war of ideas. The battle line runs through every home, every office, every farm and factory, every church and school room, every town hall and provincial capitol. On the outcome of this battle hangs the fate of our nation and the shape of future history.

THIS Season YOU'LL SEE

YOUTHFULNESS...

"the state or time of being young," defines the dictionary, and now is the time of being young. Youthfulness, beauty's most alluring ally, blended with the wizardry of the new rayon crepes, gives the magic answer to "What to Wear." Take a glimpse into the EATON Catalogue and see:

Skirts that will meet any blouse half way and pile up more service than any other costume in your wardrobe (Page 20). They make a deliberately youthful picture paired off with Blouses on Page 21.

Dresses with a young outlook... romantic short stories that accentuate a narrow waistline, yet give a flattering fullness at the bust (Page 23). Try matching a Cardigan Sweater (Page 23) with the skirt of these Dresses—you'll be delighted with the results.

Hats (Page 58) that meet the second glance they always get and show the optimism and youthful spirit of the women who wear them. You'll look as modern as the times in your off duty hours when you wear a jaunty little sailor, or a fragile hat to emphasize a severe suit.

In the first nine months of this year the Bisons dropped well over 4,000 tons of bombs on enemy targets from their four-engined Halifax bombers. They have chalked up close to the 2,500 sorties in their operational history.

The Bisons have had five commanding officers, though none has been from Alberta. The first was W/C J. A. P. Owen of the R.A.F., who was followed by W/C J. L. Sa-vard of Montreal, W/C J. A. Piddington of Vancouver, and later by W/C J. D. Pattison, D.F.C. and Bar, of Toronto, who returned to Canada a few months ago. Present C.O. is W/C A. F. "Al" Avant, D.F.C., of Hughton, Sask.

The adjutant has already written the squadron's thanks to Mayor Shackleton for the initial 7,500 cigarettes sent by the City of Lethbridge and the Bisons have received 4,000 smokes from employees of a department store in Lethbridge.

Farm Notes

Following a winter of limited snowfall, the spring of 1944 was relatively dry and seeding began earlier than usual. Prospects of a good crop were poor early in the season, particularly in the southern part of the province due to the limited reserves of moisture at that time. In some cases seeding was withheld in the hope that rain would relieve the situation. The seeding of wheat was general by the beginning of the second week in May.

Precipitation in most districts of central and northern Alberta, through out the summer was ample to excessive. Crops in the area north west of Edmonton suffered considerable damage by flooding and the quality of hay in this area was reduced. In many areas of northern Alberta seeding was delayed by continuous rains, and summerfallow became weedy when the land became too wet to permit cultivation. Abundant moisture resulted in a heavy growth of grain. The southern part of the province, however, together with the Peace River area suffered from a lack of moisture throughout the spring and summer months. Crops were backward and relatively low yields were obtained in these areas. Pastures dwindled fast in the south and the shortage of winter feed seemed evident until rain in late August benefited late sown crops and eased the situation to some extent.

Cool, unsettled weather prevailed throughout the growing season in most parts of the province. In spite of this, however, crops made good progress and the yields of grain on the whole were satisfactory.

Crop damage this year was not excessive, although a few points in the south reported considerable damage from sawflies. Hail damage was about normal for the province and damage by frost was only slight. Some lodging of grain occurred in parts of central Alberta where crops were heavy.

FARM LABOUR
Farm labour continued to be a problem of considerable importance during the season. The shortage of trained agricultural workers was offset to some extent by a greater attempt on the part of farmers to organize their activities to get along without a large number of men, and in this endeavor they were quite successful. Farmers have found it difficult to secure experienced men for year round work on live stock and dairy farms. In some cases this has resulted in lower production of essential agricultural products.

In June approximately 100 farm workers from Alberta joined the ranks of those from Saskatchewan and Manitoba who were taken to Ontario to assist with haying and the harvesting of early crops in that province. These men returned to Alberta before the 31st of August.

The most outstanding event in the farm labour situation in 1944 was the importation of over 2,000 Eastern harvesters, mainly from the province of Ontario, to assist with the harvest. This arrangement was made under the co-operative Dominion-Provincial Farm Labour Agreement.

The first contingent of the Eastern harvesters arrived in the province about the end of August and the last lot reached Alberta, after they finished harvesting in Manitoba and Saskatchewan, on October 19th. Extra help was also obtained from the armed services. Over 800 Farm Duty Soldiers were detailed to the harvest fields about the middle of August and they remained until about the end of October. Assistance was also secured through special harvest leaves which were granted to members of all the forces.

Farm workers from Southern Alberta and from the Peace River district were brought into the central part of the province when the harvest was completed in the former areas, and provision was made under the Dominion-Provincial Farm Labour Agreement to assist the movement of combines and harvesting units from Southern Alberta into more northerly districts. Under this policy approximately 15 outfits were moved.

While some districts experienced a critical shortage of harvest labour at times, the overall situation was not at any time acute, and for the most part delays in harvesting were not attributable to an acute shortage of help.

World of Wheat

H. G. L. Strange,
Director, Research Department,
Searle Grain Company, Ltd.

BARLEY GROWERS LOSING MONEY

The "Crop Testing Plan" this last year offered the same service to barley growers as it has done for fourteen years past to wheat growers. A large number of samples were collected from farmers who were growing barley with the hope of securing the malting premium. The samples were grown and were analyzed by competent plant breeders. The results are disappointing. It was found that no less than 43% of these samples graded either "C" or "Mixtures", the bulk of them "Mixtures". This means that these crops consisted of mixtures of varieties which alone unfitted the grain to make malt.

So 43% of those farmers who tried to grow malting barley, after putting in all the extra work and care needed in harvesting and threshing, failed because they had not taken the one first simple precaution of seeing to it that the seed they sowed was true to one variety acceptable to the maltsters. This simply means that if a farmer wishes to secure the premium for malting barley he must first use a variety that is acceptable to the maltster, and next must see to it that the seed he sows is relatively pure and does not consist of mixtures of other varieties. There are several varieties that will produce good malt, but of them all perhaps O.A.C. 21 is most acceptable; and registered seed is the best to buy.

ITEMS OF INTEREST IN #### THE WORLD OF FOODSTUFFS

Germany has lowered the weekly bread ration by 175 grammes. The Argentine wheat crop is expected to be well below average, owing to the smaller seeded acreage and weather setbacks. South Africa has experienced a severe drought and a poor harvest is in prospect with imports probably necessary.

Italy's new wheat crop is only 17% under pre-war home requirements, and it is expected that rationing will not be too drastic in liberated areas. The condition of Denmark's bread grain crops is said to be favourable and present prospects are for a larger wheat crop than last year.

Buzz Bombs

Anger British

By Margaret Butler
We all thought things would sharpen up—and they certainly have! The invasion across the Channel—and the buzz-bombs at home.

One cannot help wondering quite what the enemy hopes to accomplish by the buzzers. Actually they are making people very angry indeed—and, at this stage of affairs, that hardly seems wise, surely? Our nights have new noises, and we face new hazards, but a friend told me yesterday that despite the fresh developments, she was tremendously impressed by the spirit of London.

She went up to do some business and, at lunch time, entered a restaurant where they gave her a seat near a big window. The possibility of broken glass—always the nastiest feature—occurred to her, and she said to the waitress: "I don't think I'll sit quite so near this window," and changed her place. The woman looked at her in quiet astonishment—and then she realized that this waitress all day long, was going about her work surrounded by windows and ignoring the fact. She says it made her feel very self-conscious.

My friend the London journalist, who journeys up every day, had his office smashed the other night by one of these things, and now he is extremely peeved at having to work somewhere else in a room full of other people.

One hears complaints like that but taking it all round, the sufferers say very little about it. They just get on with their jobs. Of course, the exodus of children and people who have no particular reason for staying in the middle of it has increased the housing problem round about.

BACK WHERE I STARTED

My own problem seems as insoluble as ever, by the way. At any time now I may have to step out of here and give vacant possession, together with my two trunks, my various cases and my small wardrobe. (Query: has anybody ever tried living in a small wardrobe? Maybe I shall have to try it out!) The woman who promised to have me has now written—after seven precious weeks have been wasted!—to say that she has changed her plans; so we are back where we started.

Now I am going to look at somebody else's toolshed to see if it is habitable. Yes, I know it sounds fantastic, but life is like that nowadays.

And, by the way, I learn that certain Canadian reader friends are quite worried over my homeless condition, and I regard that as a very handsome sentiment, bless them. But don't you worry overmuch, my dears; something will HAVE to happen. At the very worst I can only be arrested for sleeping out "without visible means of support"—and let's hope it will be a fine night for it. A cell would seem nice and cosy after such an experience, believe me.

Last month I made a trip over to the West to see if there was anything there, but nothing materialized. One is always coming up against "restricted" areas where no newcomers are permitted, and that was another of them. I made a vow, last summer, that there should be no more wartime train journeys, but some friends of mine, having taken rooms in a country hotel, were unable to leave home and offered the chance to me.

So off I went again—and it was everything I expected it to be. A three hour wait at the station (for one gets a lift when one can now and chances the rest of it) and then, when the train came in, it was so crammed that one could not see a gleam of daylight through the compartments as it drew up at the platform. I was hustled along with the crowd, hoping wanly for standing room; and just inside the door I saw a tall, pleasant-faced young man, already mercilessly squashed.

"For heaven's sake," I bleated, "hang on to me!" He hung on and I made it. I was then a trifle embarrassed—in view of my plaintive shriek—to find he was a young priest. But he helped to beguile the time on that rather dreadful journey, and at last I got to the other end, where the bus queue was equally agile and determined.

The little village where I stayed is one of the ancient show places of England, and now simply crammed with American troops. One heard the local kids saying "Yes, ma'am" and "Oh, yeah?" And the hotel landlady—a little 'sport' if ever I saw one—let the American boys into her big kitchen in the evenings to "roll up their sleeves and cook themselves hamburgers on her range."

"I don't mind," she says, "so long as they enjoy themselves." Many of them, I'm sure, will always be grateful to her for that touch of "home". I liked that little woman: brisk and friendly and human. It can't be any joke to have crowds of men hampering again, and I feel that I must do as much as I can; otherwise he'll kitchen activities, but they all know her for the good sort she is, and I am sure she would do the same for any of the boys. Well, they'll cross the water soon, I suppose—if they haven't done so already—feeling all the better for the real friendliness they found in an English village.

The invasion of course, has made a tremendous difference to our frame of mind. The sense that things are really moving is very strong. I got a terrific impression of it last night when I heard a man say, "I'd simply hate to be a German now." He said it very quietly, without heat or passion or even dislike. That is what made it so telling. Just an ordinary person's view of the situation. We listen avidly to the news on the radio knowing that this is the sort of situation when almost anything may happen.

NORMANDY MEMORIES

To those of us who know Normandy it all seems at once very real and very strange. I have tramped over some of that country, so it does not strike me as 'foreign' or far-away; but it also seems terribly difficult to imagine it as a battle ground. I keep on recalling little scenes: the tiny wayside cafe where I had those delicious omelettes, and where after their lunch, the three men in the corner (Russian exiles, the cafe owner whispered to me) sat back and sang in wonderful harmony, the songs of their country.

Caen, with its grey stone—and quaint streets—and where they serve a peculiarly disagreeable tripe dish, by the way—and a charabanc dash to Cherbourg, with half the wheels in the air most of the time, and the horn honking like mad. An eight mile trek along the canal bank to Ouistreham: eight dead straight miles that seemed endless on a boiling July day; and, at the end of it, a shakedown in a hotel that was crammed out for the fourteenth of July celebrations, and I had to sleep in a kind of nook. Outside in the yard forty cabbies were settling down for the night on beds of straw, and every dog in the village barked till dawn.

No; it is not easy to see all this as it must be now. But I'm glad I knew it as it once was, and as nobody will see it again.

The Gardening Partner, who has just recovered from another illness and has been forbidden to take a hand, totters out, sits himself on an upturned bucket and has a grand time telling me not to do whatever I happen to be doing. I am not pinching up the garden seat for him, where he will be able to supervise in greater comfort. It's good to see him about worry himself, no doubt. He speaks very scornfully of my drunken looking bean sticks—quite forgetting that the beans are about twice my height already and that I've never been able to do anything to the tops of the wretched things.

A woman I know (I have just done a portrait of her for her prisoner-of-war husband) has offered to come along and dig for me when I need her, so that unhappy question has settled itself. I am sure the G.P. was bothering himself about that quite a lot. It must be maddening for him, poor old dear. Yet last time he said, as before: "What a filthy state all our crops are in!" so he must be a lot better. One thing I always insist upon: when he comes out there he has to sit very close to the rubbish pit. It is not the most fragrant corner, I'll admit, but—odd how these ideas stick in one's head in these times!—if I SHOULD see a buzz-bomb coming I could at least push him into the hole.

I was surprised, the other day, to hear a voice I know over the radio, coming from Normandy. It isn't a voice I've heard very often, I confess, for its owner is a silent Scot and not a bit the kind of man one would have pictured acting as a war correspondent. My chief recollection of him is a rather slight, dark young man seated unobtrusively in a corner and listening to everybody else. Now his voice—right from the thick of things—comes over quite boldly: any when I saw a picture of him in a magazine yesterday. I hardly recognized him. I hear that he went through a thorough commando course of training before he took on the job, so that explains it.

HERE'S MY FEED PROBLEM

Has feed a definite effect on the health of baby chicks after hatching?

HERE'S THE ANSWER

One sure way to save baby chicks is to put the best of the necessary food materials inside the hatching egg. Naturally the only way to do this is through the hen. So feed your laying hens "Miracle" Hatching Mash at least two months before you collect the eggs for the incubator. "Miracle" Hatching Mash is tested to give your laying hens perfectly balanced food value. If you have plenty of farm grains, mix your own feed with "Miracle" Hatching Mash Supplement.

NOTICE TO EMPLOYERS AND THEIR MALE EMPLOYEES— Including Farmers

By an order signed on August 15th, 1944, by the undersigned
Minister of Labour under authority of
National Selective Service Mobilization Regulations, 1944:

1. Commencing August 22nd, 1944, every employer is required to check the documents held by each newly engaged male employee, within 7 days of the employee's engagement, to determine if such employee possesses documents to show that he is in good standing under National Selective Service Mobilization Regulations, 1944 (that is, in relation to the Military Call-up);
2. Every employer must report on Schedule 9 to the Registrar for his Mobilization Division, concerning any employee found not to possess documents as referred to;
3. Every employer is required similarly to check the documents held by each male employee now working for him, whose documents he has not checked before, and to report to the Registrar for his Mobilization Division at once on any such employee found not to possess documents as referred to;
4. Any male employee here referred to, is required by the Regulations to present his documents to his employer for purposes of inspection;
5. FOR THIS PURPOSE "EMPLOYER" INCLUDES ALSO ANY FARMER OPERATING A FARM, WHO HAS A MALE PERSON WORKING FOR HIM;
6. Penalties are provided for any employer or male employee who fails to comply with these Regulations.

By an earlier order, employers were required to check the documents held by their male employees, and to report by May 1st, 1944, on doubtful cases as well as cases where employees did not possess documents.

Employers are asked to remember that they do not report on men who do possess the necessary documents—only on those who fail to present documents for examination, or where there is doubt that the document presented actually proves good standing.

The employers of Canada, including farmers, co-operated very satisfactorily on the first check, made up to May 1st, last. This co-operation was decidedly helpful, and is very much appreciated. Further co-operation is now earnestly requested.

Schedule 9, for reporting to the Registrar, and details as to documents which prove good standing, are available through the nearest Employment and Selective Service Office.

Farmers not needed on the farm during the winter, who answer the urgent call for winter workers in other essential industries, will be given a continuance of postponement of military training while away from the farm.

C.P.R. Car Has First Automatic Door, Wider Windows

IN MODERN MANNER: Rebuilt as part of the Canadian Pacific Railway's program for immediate improvement and refinement of existing cars and radical changes in new rolling stock to be built when peace comes, the sleeping car "Valois" has many new features, with special consideration for the comfort of women and children. The first automatic door opener in a Canadian railway car at left has a pneumatic-electric arrangement, visible at the top of the rear of the door, to do the work at the first touch of the luggage-laden passenger's hand. Top right is one of the wider windows in the car with one large window of the observation car type installed in each section to give an unbroken view of the countryside and replace two smaller windows which served before. Bottom right is the powder room of this model for modernization where innovations include tubular lighting, which is carried through the whole car, and a powder table and handbag shelf in black plastic. Other departures in the car include improved springs and anti-noise attachments on the trucks as aids to smoother riding and undisturbed slumber, illuminated car numbers to prevent confusion on dimly lighted station platforms and an interior finish which employs metal trim and pastel paint and upholstery in a pleasing combination. The car, which now is in service, also has outlets for electric razors, two-tone chimes to summon the porter and high-frequency buzzers for wake-up calls, with their installation being standard practice on all cars of this type shipped.

Peace another chance for the ordinary man to do extraordinary things.

National unity won't come by chance. It can only come through CHANGE.

If citizens begin to love their comforts more than their country that is the beginning of the end.

Things will start to look up when we do.

Local A.T.A. Branch Holds Convention

On October 26 and 27, the teachers of the Wainwright Local of the Alberta Teachers' Association held a very well-attended and very successful convention in Wainwright.

The convention opened Thursday morning with the singing of 'O Canada' and the invocation, given by Rev. L. A. Bralant, of Wainwright. Mr. H. T. Coutts, Supervisor of the Wainwright Division, gave a very interesting talk. Mr. Coutts' address was followed by that of Hon. R. E. Ansley, Minister of Education, who outlined his views on education, and warned the teachers against the influence of propaganda, particularly that intended to promote centralization of power in any field larger than the provincial field.

In the afternoon the convention was divided into Elementary, Intermediate and High School sections, to discuss problems peculiar to each group. These discussions were very helpful to all those attending.

The morning of the twenty-seventh featured an hour's talk by Mr. Leonard Bercuson, of the Correspondence School Branch, who is Director of Adult Education for Alberta. Mr. Bercuson, who is one of the most fluent speakers in the province, dealt with "Education for the Post-war World," stressing the need for adult education and for a more alert attitude toward the educational problems of the day. He outlined what has already been done in parts of this province to meet the need.

At noon, a luncheon, attended by sixty persons, was served in the cafeteria of the Wainwright Hotel.

At the business meeting, the following officers were re-elected to positions in the Wainwright Local: Mr. G. C. Welsh, Edgerton, President; Mr. I. S. Reeds, Irma, Vice-President; and Mr. D. H. Gunn, Irma, Secretary and Treasurer.

On Friday evening, Mr. Bercuson spoke to a large crowd which gathered in the Wainwright High School. He advocated the formation of an adult education group in Wainwright. At the conclusion of his address, a committee was elected to explore the possibility. Everyone who heard Mr. Bercuson will watch with great interest this first attempt to introduce adult education in this section of the province.
